The department of Communication invites graduate students interested in digital media studies, religion, and ethnographic research to participate in a workshop on conducting research in virtual worlds. The workshop will offer a basic introduction to virtual ethnography, navigation of ethical questions in conducting research in a virtual context, and methods of research.

Space is limited, so please RSVP for a spot in the workshop to James Cho at kyoungjamescho@tamu.edu.